This is a continuation Samaritanus Bonus, a 2020 letter from the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith on the care of persons in the critical and terminal phases of life:

Taking care of others, or providing care for the suffering of others, is a commitment that embraces not just a few but the entire Christian community. Saint Paul affirms that when one member suffers, it is the whole body that suffers (cf. 1 Cor 12:26) and all bend to the sick to bring them relief. Everyone, for his or her part, is called to be a “servant of consolation” in the face of any human situation of desolation or discomfort.

Pastoral accompaniment involves the exercise of the human and Christian virtues of empathy (empathos), of compassion (cum-passio), of bearing another’s suffering by sharing it, and of the consolation (cum-solacium), of entering into the solitude of others to make them feel loved, accepted, accompanied, and sustained.

The ministry of listening and of consolation that the priest is called to offer, which symbolizes the compassionate solicitude of Christ and the Church, can and must have a decisive role. In this essential mission it is extremely important to bear witness to and unite truth and charity with which the gaze of the Good Shepherd never ceases to accompany all of His children. Given the centrality of the priest in the pastoral, human and spiritual accompaniment of the sick at life’s end, it is necessary that his priestly formation provide an updated and precise preparation in this area. It is also important that priests be formed in this Christian accompaniment. Since there may be particular circumstances that make it difficult for a priest to be present at the bedside, physicians and healthcare workers need this formation as well.

Being men and women skilled in humanity means that our way of caring for our suffering neighbor should favor their encounter with the Lord of life, who is the only one who can pour, in an efficacious manner, the oil of consolation and the wine of hope onto human wounds.

Every person has the natural right to be cared for, which at this time is the highest expression of the religion that one professes.

The sacramental moment is always the culmination of the entire pastoral commitment to care that precedes and is the source of all that follows.

The Church calls Penance and the Anointing of the Sick sacraments “of healing” for they culminate in the Eucharist which is the “viaticum” for eternal life. Through the closeness of the Church, the sick person experiences the nearness of Christ who accompanies them on their journey to his Father’s house (cf. Jn 14:6) and helps the sick to not fall into despair, by supporting them in hope especially when the journey becomes exhausting.

Our gospel passage this week continues with parables of Jesus. How can we possibly comprehend the enormity of the Kingdom of Heaven? The mustard seed and yeast are ordinary examples that help, but in no way can they fully allow us to even get a glimpse of the infinite love and mercy of God that awaits us in the Kingdom. Our God is an awesome God!

With love and prayers,

Fr. John Costello

I WANTED A BETTER MARRIAGE

“ We decided to attend Retrouvaille because I remembered my aunt and uncle's marriage was so different from everyone else's in my family. They never argued, always seemed calm and loving, and spoke to each other with such respect. Later, I found out they had gone through a marriage help program similar to Retrouvaille. That's what I wanted—a better, healthier marriage. Now, after attending, I have the tools to make that goal a reality. ”
